

Sub Forum Idea - Troubleshooting?

Posted by joepaluch - 25 Jan 2011 07:25

Guys,

How do you feel about a 944 troubleshooting section.

Common problems with cars and then solutions. Being around these cars for years I have seen lots of problems, but not all. It might be hard for new drivers to have a list of common problems and how we resolved them. I would bet that with our combined experience we have had probably every problem in the book at least once or twice. Knowing where to look can really save time, money and aggravation.

So maybe a sub forum of car building? Keep simple and keep it to what you did to resolve it.

Problem/Symptom

Solution

Thoughts?

=====

Re: Sub Forum Idea - Troubleshooting?

Posted by cgktexas - 25 Jan 2011 08:21

I think it would be a good idea. I am new to these cars and in the process of a build. A quick place to look for things would definitely be a benefit.

=====

Re: Sub Forum Idea - Troubleshooting?

Posted by spec28 - 25 Jan 2011 18:58

Joe, this is a great idea that is long overdue.

It needs to be kept simple, and to the point.

It certainly will add to the confidence of the spec series, for new and long time racers.

=====

Re: Sub Forum Idea - Troubleshooting?

Posted by Sterling Doc - 26 Jan 2011 12:02

Agreed, great idea.

We need Ken to make this happen.

=====

Re: Sub Forum Idea - Troubleshooting?

Posted by pixrken - 27 Jan 2011 15:03

sub forum "Troubleshooting" created under "Race Car Build";

=====